ch(s) chain or chain stitches

dc double crochet

dtr double treble crochet

blo back loop only: insert hook under back loop only flo front loop only: insert hook under front loop only

FPdtr front post double treble crochet or stitch required with FP: insert hook from back to front to back to go around post of stitch indicated, work the stitch required

rep(s) repeat

Special Abbreviations

Double treble in front loop only in two rows below: yarn over two times, insert hook in front loop only in stitch two rows below, yarn over pull through (4 loops on hook), yarn over, pull through two loops (3 loops on hook), yarn over, pull through 2 loops (2 loops on hook), yarn over, pull through last two loops.

FPdtr in dtr in row 101: in row 103 you are going to change the direction of diagonal double treble rows. Yarn over two times, hook from front to back to front around the double treble in row 101, yarn over, pull through (4 loops on hook) yarn over, pull through two loops (3 loops on hook), yarn over, pull through two loops (2 loops on hook), yarn over, pull through last two loops.

Join new yarn: make a slipknot, insert hook in first stitch, place yarn on hook, pull through, yarn over, pull through.

Fasten off: leave a long thread, cut yarn, draw the cut end through the last remaining loop on the hook, pull on the tail of yarn to snug up the end.

Pattern notes

- The pattern is based on the apache tear pattern.
- The joining chain is never counted as a stitch.
- The end chain is never counted as a stitch.
- First dc is always crocheted in the first stitch (same stitch as yarn is joined)
- Last dc is always crocheted in the last stitch.
- The stitch behind the double treble in front loop only or front post is not crocheted.
- In row 5 to row 199 you always have 2 dcs, 20 dtr in flo in stitch two rows below and 82 dcs in blo (except row 103)
- To understand the pattern, it can be divided in two sides. First half (stitch 1 to stitch 52) and second half (stitch 53 to 104)
- In row 6 to 102 the double trebles are crocheted before the double trebles of the row below in the first half. In the second half the double trebles are crocheted after the double trebles of the row below. (except for the two double trebles in the middle in row 5 and every fifth row, when you start a new diagonal row of double trebles so to say)

- Row 103 is the “changing row”. It is the first row where the direction of the double treble pattern changes and it is the first row to repeat a colour. The FPdtr are crocheted around the trebles in row 101 which means that they are the same colour.

- After row 103 you change directions of the diagonal double treble rows. That means that from row 104 to 199 in the first half of every row the double treble is crocheted after the double trebles of the row below. In the second half the double trebles are crocheted before the double trebles in the row below.(except for the first and last double treble of row 106 and every fifth row, when you start a new diagonal row of double trebles so to say)

- If you find the pattern notes confusing (especially the part where I try to explain the diagonal double treble rows) just follow the written pattern and I hope you will understand what I mean.
- The pattern is adjustable by a multiple of 10 stitches. (5 stitches on every side which means that you add one repetition on every side). 10 stitches make the pattern approximately 6cm wider.
- Start every row with a long thread and leave a long thread of yarn (approximately 15 cm) when fastening off.
- A border is optional. I just cut off the threads at the same length. (ca.10cm)
